SEATS AND SADDLES, Bits and Biting, Draught and Harness, and the Prevention and Cure of Restiveness in Horses. By Major Francis Dwyer.

(OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON THE NEW EDITION).

Bell's Life says:—"The work which Major Dwyer has so successfully carried through the press in two former editions is, for the third time, presented to the public in a new and enlarged form. In all the details of horse management the author is perfectly at home, and the practical way in which he deals with his subject cannot fail to be appreciated by equestrians or those who keep studs. The first portion of the volume is devoted to a lengthy dissertation on the all-important subject of Seats and Saddles. These chapters afford much valuable information gained by a careful study, not only of the frame-work of the animal considered from a mechanical point of view, but also of the influence of the saddle in its relation to the seat of the rider. . . . We assure our readers that the whole contents of the book are well worth perusal. It may be well, however, to mention that the question of bits and biting is thoroughly considered, while Part III. is taken up with remarks on the true principles which should be observed in matters of draught and harness. The concluding portion of the book deals with that worst of all vices in the horse, restiveness, its prevention and cure."

The Dublin Farmers' Gazette says:—"We noticed Major Dwyer's book on its first appearance some years ago, and we do so again with much pleasure, seeing it has reached its third edition, and appears in an enlarged and much improved form. It is a book which should be in the hands of every one who either rides a horse or drives

one. Major Dwyer's remarks on draught, training for draught, and on restiveness are invaluable. The work is illustrated with suitable engravings explanatory of the text."

The Scotsman says:—"The fact that the second edition of Major Dwyer's well-known treatise has been for some time out of print, has led to the issue of a third edition, to which the author has made various important additions. The book is one of the most scientific and exhaustive works in our language on the subject of which it treats. It is impossible to read this book without arriving at the conviction that there is every year an enormous waste of horse flesh in this country, as well as others, through sheer ignorance and adherence to rule of thumb traditions."

The Guardian says:—"It is not usual to light on a book about "horsey" matters, which unites scientific acquirements with practical knowledge. Major Dwyer combines both these requisites for a successful teacher in his book. The results of the wide experience of the author as a cavalry officer in the Austrian service, are in every case referred to their causes in the principles of dynamical laws, and explained and illustrated by a series of carefully-drawn mathematical diagrams. Altogether his readers will agree that Major Dwyer's book is the most thorough and scientific manual yet published on the subject."

The Country says:—"Major Dwyer's book will be known to many readers. Its sterling worth, the evidence on every page that it is the work of a man of large experience and clear thought, have made it popular with that very wide English constituency, riding men, so that a third edition has been found necessary to supply public demand. The author has taken the opportunity a new edition offered to add remarks on several important points, and to correct some misapprehensions that had arisen; and the book, as now placed before the reader, is most complete, showing the writer to be thoroughly master of the subject, alike in its principles and its smallest details. We heartily commend it to the perusal of every owner of a horse."

The Army and Navy Gazette says:—"Major Dwyer's work on Seats and Saddles, &c., which has reached a third edition, is already favourably known in sporting and military circles. It is written with ease and to the point, describing in a few words what the author wishes to convey to his readers. There are several additions to the volume as now issued which render the book more valuable. The chapter on 'Military Seats' will be found very interesting. Altogether Major Dwyer's book is a pleasantly-written and instructive treatise on a universally popular subject."

Truth says:—"Major Dwyer's 'Seats and Saddles,' of which a third edition, improved and enlarged, has appeared, needs no recommendation to lovers of horses. It has been improved and enlarged particularly, if my memory does not deceive me, in the sections devoted to draught and horses, bits, and the prevention and cure of restiveness. In these improvements the thoroughly scientific, as well as practical character of the book is steadily maintained."

THE CULTIVATION AND MANUFACTURE OF TEA.

By Lieut-Col. Edward Money.

(OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON THE NEW EDITION.)

The Saturday Review says:—"We think that Col. Money has done good service by throwing into the form of a book, an essay, which gained the Prize awarded by the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, in 1873. The author is one of a well-known Anglo-Indian family, which has done good service to the State in divers capacities, Civil and Military. He has been in the habit of making copious notes on Tea, he tells us for the past eleven years; and he is the owner of plantations in the Himalayas, in Chittagong, and in the Bhootan Doars. He has had plenty of practical experience, and has tested the labours of other men Col. Money's general rules and principles, as far as we can form a judgment, seem to have reason as well as experience on their side No Tea Planter can afford to disregard his experience."

The Indian Agriculturist says:—"Col. Money has advanced with the times, and the work under review may well be considered the standard work on the subject, and it ought to be in every Tea Planter's hand in India, Ceylon, Java, Japan, China or America; the merit and sterling value of his essay has been so universally and deservedly acknowledged, that all that is left for us to say is that this, the third edition, contains all the additional information that has been gained during the last six years, has been corrected up to date and much enlarged. The value of Col. Money's work is enhanced by the fact that he has seen and studied Tea cultivation in all of the districts of which he treats, and that he deals with the whole subject in a practical manner, and has very few scientific theories to advance. We recommend our readers who require full information and sound advice on the subject to procure Col. Money's book.

Allen's Indian Mail says:—"The particulars of this Great industry, which comprises (Tea) Cultivation and Manufacture are given in the work of Col. Money. The third Edition expanded from the original prize Essay published in 1872, by the results of the author's practical experience and observations up to the present time, supplies full details of the origin and progress of an Indian Tea Garden, and that in a very lucid and readable form The publication of so thorough, clear and instructive a directorium as Col. Money's work is in itself a proof of the attention devoted to this important industry, which has a great future before it. No one who desires to understand the condition of its development; still more—no one who has a pecuniary interest in a Tea Garden, can feel that the subject of tea is known until this work has been studied."

The China Express says:—"The experience gained since

1872 is added to the work, and it now forms a most complete guide to the tea planter. The great progress the cultivation of tea is making in India renders a practical work of this kind very valuable; and the method in which Colonel Money deals with the subject shows his thorough knowledge of it."

The Scotsman says:—"With respect to the conditions of climate and soil necessary for successful tea cultivation, the requirements of the plant in the way of water, &c., the varieties best suited for culture in the various districts, the laying out of the tea garden, and all the various details of cultivation and manufacture, Colonel Money writes with the authority derived from many years of experience; and in the present edition the fruits of his latest experience are embodied. To new beginners in tea cultivation this book must be of the greatest value, while it will be found full of interest by outsiders who may be desirous of information about the condition and prospects of an important department of agricultural industry."

The Produce Markets Review says:—"Colonel Money is a practical tea planter, and his work is the standard work on the subject, so that it should be procured by all who are interested in the subject. The new edition is greatly enlarged, and corrected by the experience of the past six years."

The Planters' Gazette says:—"The cultivation of tea in the British dominions is becoming a rapidly extending industry, and we are glad to see that Colonel Money's prize essay has reached a third edition, for it is full of practical information and deserves to be studied by every tea planter."

The Manchester Examiner says:—"During the last few years the fact that India is a tea-producing country has become more generally known in England; but few people know that the finest Indian teas are more expensive than the best of Chinese growth, and that the average price of the tea grown in India is higher than that which comes from the Flowery Land. Another piece of information given in this book is not less suggestive; we mean that which assures us that India is capable of producing as much tea as would meet the wants of Great Britain and all her colonies. But the culture is yet in its infancy. Colonel Money's treatise is one of the most complete and exhaustive of the kind we have ever read. He seems to anticipate all possible difficulties; his warnings and his counsels embrace every branch of the subject, and only a practical man could have written them. One would think that a tea grower of common sense could scarcely make blunders with such an admirable guide before him: and the commercial side of the enterprise is discussed in the same careful manner as the agricultural."

The Broad Arrow says:—"In this work we have the results of eighteen years' experience of a tea planter in India, and the author has so written it that the beginner will find it invaluable, for he has had his wants specially in view. It is, so far as we know, the best as it is certainly the most practical book about tea that has been published."

WON BY WAITING. A Story of Home Life in France and England. By Edna Lyall. With Frontispiece by Frank Murray.

(OPINIONS OF THE PRESS).

The Academy says:—"The Dean's daughters are perfectly real characters—the learned Cornelia especially;—the little impulsive French heroine, who endures their cold hospitality and at last wins their affection, is thoroughly charming; while throughout the book there runs a golden thread of pure brotherly and sisterly love, which pleasantly reminds us that the making and marring of marriage is not, after all, the sum total of real life."

The Freeman says:—"A very pleasing and well-written tale; full of graphic descriptions of French and English life, with incidents and characters well sustained. A book with such pleasant reading, and with such a healthy tone and influence, is a great boon to the young people in our families."

The Literary Churchman says:—"Interesting, and with the soupçon of sentiment which is dear to the hearts of novel-readers, old and young."

(OPINIONS OF THE PRESS).

The Literary Churchman says:—"Pungent, amusing, and replete with clever satire."

The Christian says:—"In this ingenious and novel experiment, gravity and mirth go hand in hand. The style is energetic and pointed, and the matter pregnant and suggestive."

The Sword and Trowel says:—"Very clever."

The Nonconformist says:—"Under the guise of commentary on texts from old nursery rhymes and stories, Mr. Ritchie really gives us some admirable discourses—'Sermonic Fancy Work' in very deed. It is astonishing how, by the help of a slight vein of paradox and a nimble fancy, he can pass, almost imperceptibly, from mild fun to very sad earnest, touching not a few of our most ingrained faults in the most efficient way."
